

Potomac State's Homecoming Set For October 21

Saturday, October 21, has been designated as the 1972 Homecoming for Potomac State College and the gridiron encounter will be with Ferrum College.

The Catamounts will open their 1972 season on Sept. 16 against Harford followed with a match against Wesley on Sept. 30 as part of the Parents Day program.

Other home games include the Marshall University Freshman on Oct. 7, Montgomery on Oct. 14, and WVU Freshmen, Nov. 4.

The tentative schedule is for all home games to be played at 8 p.m. with the exception of the homecoming game which is presently set at 2 p.m. However, this may also be changed pending a meeting of the alumni groups and various faculty committees. Further details will be announced in a later newsletter.

Circle K Club To Mark 20th

Comdr. Ralph W. Smith, Jr., USN, Washington, D.C., who served as the first president of Circle K Club at Potomac State College, has accepted an invitation to be present Saturday, April 15, when the club has its 20th Anniversary banquet at 7 p.m. at the Old Stone House, Burlington.

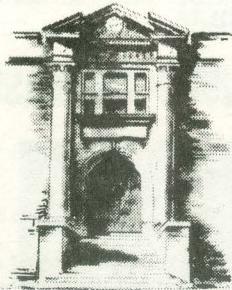

Circle K has invited all its past presidents, officers of Kiwanis International, members of the local Kiwanis Club, past district governors, and members of the five Kiwanis Clubs which constitute the 5th Division of West Virginia Berkeley Springs, Charles Town, Keyser, Martinsburg, and Petersburg.

Entertainment is to be provided by the college stage band under the direction of Dr. Charles D. Whitehill.

Summer School To Begin June 12

The summer term for Potomac State College will open on Monday, June 12, according to Executive Dean Harold C. Doster who said that classes will end on Friday, July 14.

The second session will commence on July 17 and close on Friday, August 17.

Dr. Joseph Cosand Slated As Speaker For Commencement

Dr. Joseph Cosand, Deputy Commissioner for Higher Education, Washington, D.C., will be the principal speaker when approximately 114 students are graduated from Potomac State College on May 7.

The annual commencement exercises are scheduled for 3 p.m. in the Church-McKee Arts Center.

Until recently Dr. Cosand was a professor teaching in the community college field at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and also doubling as Director of the Center for the Study of Higher Education on that campus.

Prior to these assignments he was President of the Junior College District of St. Louis.

He is well-known in the field of education having served as immediate past chairman of the American Council on Education, a member of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

Potomac State College was stunned recently by the sudden successive deaths of three of its prominent faculty members which ultimately left a void according to some which will be difficult to fill.

The trio of devoted instructors who served the college faithfully for many years included Orval J. Anderson, professor and chairman of the English department; Walter H. Boone, professor and chairman of the chemistry department; and J. Kenna Burke, associate professor of political science and sociology.

Prof. Anderson, 56, died on December 4 shortly after being admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser. He had been unable to meet his classes since last Oct. 19, when he suffered a slight heart seizure. Though he had been hospitalized for a few weeks, he was at home in the Faculty Apartments when stricken and was expected to return to his classes for the second semester.

A native of Rowlesburg, he attended Potomac State College for two years after graduation

Beavers Is Named As Successor To Prof. Kenna Burke

Professor Lester K. Beavers, instructor in political science and sociology since last fall, has been named as the permanent successor to the late Prof. J. Kenna Burke, whose position he filled following his resignation.

Previous to his appointment here, Prof. Beavers was involved in an interchange program between the University of Antioquia in Colombia, South America, and West Virginia University.

While teaching in the Division of Social Sciences there, he was also doing research for the completion of a doctoral dissertation.

president of the Alumni Foundation, by Atty. Ralph J. Bean of Moorefield on behalf of Mrs. Allen, the executrix of her late husband's estate.

After making the presentation, Mr. Bean, an alumnus, former president of the Alumni Association, and former president and member of the Board of Governors of West Virginia University engineered an additional $375 expansion to the scholarship funds by offering an immediate $25 contribution if 14 others would follow suit. His challenge was acted upon and met in less than two minutes. Atty. Bean is also a former president of the West Virginia State Senate.

C. B. Allen was a native of Moorefield who completed his degree work at West Virginia University following his attendance at the Keyser institution. He then became an aerospace executive and a well known writer.

His aviation career began in 1917 with his enlistment with the Aviation Section of the U.S. Army Signal Corps., continued through World War II, and ended in 1956 in retirement as full Colonel.

Mr. Allen's newspaper career began in 1921 as a reporter and city editor of the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. He served as Aviation Editor of the New York Herald-Tribune (1934-38), and then served with the Civil Aeronautics Authority before his appointment to the three-man Air Safety Board by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Prior to the start of WWII Allen returned to the Herald-Tribune as National Defense editor, later assigned to the Washington bureau to cover military and aviation news.

In 1953 he resigned to go with the Glenn L. Martin Company, later to become the Aerospace Division of the Martin-Marietta Corporation, as assistant to the president. He retired in 1965 but continued as consultant to the company until 1968.

As a reporter of aviation news C.B. Allen covered most of the major news stories on aviation during the Twenties and Thirties: Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic takeoff, the takeoff of Amelia Earhart on her last flight, and the burning of the airship Hindenburg.

Allen and his wife, the former Margaret Pratt of Wellesley Hills, Mass., bought the historic Randolph home "The Willows" in 1947 and restored it. In 1967 they bought and restored the Judge Allen home place "Ingleside" which became their home.

Four Members Of Faculty To Get July Promotions

Announcement of promotions in rank of four members of the Potomac State College faculty was made recently in Morgantown when WVU President James G. Harlow presented the names of 129 University employees to be promoted effective July 1.

William H. Gallier has been promoted from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor of history; Jack M. Hartman, who held the rank of Assistant Professor, will become Associate Professor of psychology.

Miss Janie S. Larmoyeux, who has been instructor of modern languages, will have the rank of Assistant Professor. Robert T. Staggs, computer programming specialist, has been given the rank of Instructor in computer science.

Nuzum Gets New Title During His Trip To Russia

Prof. David G. Nuzum left for a study seminar in the Iron Curtain countries on November 8 as the college's Director of Student Affairs and returned home on November 29 as Director of College Planning and Services.

Nuzum will work in four areas: federal programs, college planning and development, adult and continuing education, and community services.

His duties in connection with student organizations have been assumed by Fred Pearman, consultant to the student body.

Mr. Nuzum visited Russia, Poland, Hungary, and Romania as a part of a Comparative Education Seminar to study education in the USSR-dominated lands. The Seminar was sponsored by Kent State University.

Homecoming Weekend Filled With Busy Schedule, Many Memories

Smith Is Honored For His 25th Year

Richard Smith, custodian at the Student Union, was honored recently by the faculty and staff of Potomac State College for 25 years of service with the institution.

Smith, a resident of Keyser, previously was employed in the College Dining Hall where his wife, the former Alice Mae Clifford Hart, is still head cook.

A party honoring Smith was held Sunday, March 19, at the Keyser Moose Home.

Our Regrets

In the last issue of the Alumni Newsletter an account was published listing the death of Ira V. Kimble. The item was reported to the Alumni Office when in actuality the deceased was Ira F. Kimble of Maysville, W. Va.

Ira V. Kimble, '50, is presently living in Lexington, Va. The staff regrets any embarrassment resulting from the report and extends its apologies to Mr. Kimble and members of his family.

Although it seems like a long time ago Homecoming 1971 went down in the annals of Potomac State College as another successful weekend jam-packed with activities and nostalgic reunions for a number of former students.

Students and faculty alike joined in the festivities on Oct. 9 which marked homecoming. The day began with registration in the Student Union, the traditional parade sponsored by Circle K, the homecoming luncheon in Kelley Armory, and the surprise presentation of a $1,000 bequest to augment the scholarship fund. (See separate story).

Two alumni from the Class of 1921 were present for their 50th anniversary reunion and several 25-year graduates attended for their silver jubilee.

Alumni President Kenneth F. Haines also introduced Miss Myra Nefflen, Class of 1909; the association officers, and emeritus members of the college staff Dr. Nancy M. Miller, Pittsburgh, and Mr. and Mrs. Dana G. Lough, Keyser.

Dr. James Courier of Keyser and Mrs. John Sitar (Magdalene Williams) of Romney were elected to one-year terms as Alumni Association board members.

Executive Dean Harold C.

Doster gave the guests a "state of the college" review, covering the major activities of the year, new faculty members, current and proposed programs and projects. Academic Dean James T. Handlan also extended greetings to the alumni.

The Homecoming Queen, Miss Lynn Mortimer of Bordentown, N.J., and members of her court were special guests for the luncheon.

Special halftime ceremonies were part of the program for the Catamounts encounter with the Marshall University Freshmen and many students, alumni, and

Saturday Classes Thing of the Past

Saturday classes have been abolished for the second semester, according to Dean James T. Handlan. The move represents a major change in the entire academic system since Saturday classes at Potomac State have a long maintained tradition.

Action to do away with classes on Saturday was initiated by the Student Government and passed along to the college faculty, who approved the measure unanimously.

Former Coach George Parrish Succumbs at 74

Former Coach George F. Parrish, who was practically a legend in his own time at Potomac State College from 1922-1932, died last Sept. 22 in Charleston at the age of 74.

The highly successful mentor began his career on the hill in 1922 as head football coach and for the next 11 years ably served the Catamount athletic program as coach of both the gridiron and basketball sports.

While serving PSC as coach, Parrish also served as athletic director and as an executive secretary of the West Virginia Railroads Association.

Coach Parrish himself had quite an athletic career before coming to Keyser. He was named center on the all-time Virginia Tech basketball squad and made the All-Southern team for two years in a row. Also, while at VPI, he was named at end on the All-South Atlantic football team.

He served as line coach at Louisiana State University under Frank Bocock in 1921 and then came here in 1922 to play semi-pro basketball and coach.

Survivors include two daughters: Mrs. Agnes (Parrish) Popp, '42, of Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. Margaret (Parrish) Carey, '48, Charleston.

Former Professor Dr. Lincoln Stewart Dies After Illness

The Alumni Office has been informed of the death last Sept. 12 of Dr. Lincoln Stewart, professor of geology from the fall of 1935 to the close of the spring term in 1942.

Dr. Stewart's death came the day before his 82nd birthday in a Springfield, Ohio, hospital where he had been confined for about a month.

A graduate of Stanford University, Dr. Stewart had a master's degree from the University of California and a PhD from Columbia. He replaced Homer Hoskins as professor of geology and was in turn replaced by the late Prof. Joe L. Young.

Dr. Stewart is survived by his wife, Lottie, who resides at 281 Glendale Drive, Springfield, Ohio 45504.

Trio Of Outstanding Teachers

Three prominent members of the Potomac State faculty were recently chosen by a committee at Potomac State College as the 1971-72 Outstanding Teachers. From left to right are Prof. William E. Michael, chairman of the biology department and professor of biological sciences; Prof. Kenneth M. Malone, associate professor of agriculture; and Dr. Charles Whitehill, associate professor of music, and chairman of the department of music.

Prof. Jaworek, Albert Willhide To Retire In May

Two individuals who have given approximately 62 years of service to Potomac State College will be retiring at the end of the present school term.

Prof. Walter E. Jaworek, of the engineering department, and Albert O. Willhide, college electrician, have indicated their intentions to retire after 30 and 32 years of service respectively.

friends of the college flocked to the after-game reception in the lounge of Friend Hall. Mrs. Robert T. Coffman, director of alumni affairs, was coordinator of all of the homecoming events. Assisting her with the reception were Prof. Elizabeth Hanlin, Prof. Margaret E. Rafter, and Mrs. Charles Whitehill.

Concluding the day's activities was the homecoming dance in Kelley Armory where Miss Catamount and her court were again honored by the student government.

Potomac State To Maintain Ties With W.Va. University

Many individuals—including faculty, staff, and a number of alumni—breathed a sigh of relief recently when the West Virginia Board of Regents announced its decision to allow Potomac State College to retain its present status as a junior college of West Virginia University.

The statement came after many months of indecision, uncertainty, and argumentative meetings as to whether or not Potomac State would be informed that its ties with the senior institution had been severed and it had become part the Community College system proposed for the state of West Virginia and presented to the Legislature in its recent session.

Opposition to the severance of ties with the University brought about spasmodic reaction within the alumni ranks as well as among the faculty and staff members of the college. As a result of complaints voiced by many individuals, petitions were circulated, letters were written to lawmakers and interested educators, and several special meetings were called by alumni groups.

Both the Alumni Association and Foundation went on record as being opposed to any break with the University while opposition was also voiced regarding some of the provisions included in the 47-page plan prepared by a team of consultants working in close liaison with the Board of Regents.

The move to preserve the present status of the college brought about volunteer efforts on the part of many legislators, townspeople, friends of the college, and loyal alumni throughout the state, particularly a group of persons in Charleston who were responsible for a lobbying effort on behalf of their Alma Mater.

While some alumni are in favor of adding more vocational and technical courses to the present curriculum, many were opposed to the 10-region community college system which would have converted Potomac State to a community college for the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia.

Much statewide opposition was expressed in the Legislature to the overall proposal and the matter will be introduced at a later session.

WOMEN HONORED

Two associate professors at Potomac State have been accepted as members of Delta Gamma Society, an international organization for outstanding women in the field of education. They are Prof. Irene Brown, chairman of the commerce department, and Prof. Elizabeth Hanlin, head of the home economics department. They are to be honored at a dinner meeting of Eta Chapter of West Virginia on April 8 at the Manorland Post Motel.

Annual Fund Drive Underway, Many Contribute To Foundation

The 1972 campaign for contributions to the Potomac State College Alumni Foundation, Inc., begins with the mailing of this issue of the ALUMNI NEWSLETTER.

More than $15,000 has been placed in trust, and the income from that trust fund provides two full scholarships to a sophomore and a freshman at the college.

Reports on income earned during the past year are filed with the Foundation in March, and the board of directors will meet in early April to determine the distribution of the income for 1972-1973.

During the past year the Foundation received gifts in memory of

Astronaut Tom Stafford Speaks At Colorful Honors Convocation

Student Body President Daniel Murphy and Miss Susan Bishop are pictured above as they chatted with Astronaut Thomas Stafford following a dinner at the Potomac Motel Dining Room. Stafford was the principal speaker at a recent Honors Convocation at the college and the students were members of the program committee.

Astronaut Col. Thomas P. Stafford, USAF, was the guest speaker at an Honors Convocation held Tuesday evening, February 1, in the Church-McKee Arts Center. He was introduced by Congressman Harley O. Staggers, who arranged for his appearance on behalf of the college. Col.

Stafford will be remembered as a member of the crew of Gemini 6 and the command pilot of Gemini 9 and Apollo 10 space programs and its benefits for mankind.

The program was held to honor students named to the Executive or Academic Dean's Lists. Also recognized were four professors emeriti, Dr. Nancy M. Miller, and professors Ervin Dayton, Dana G. Lough, and Anne E. Withers. Three faculty members who were nominated along with other faculty in the WVU complex for Outstanding Teacher of the Year awards also received certificates from Dr. Jay Barton II, provost for instruction at WVU. They were professors Kenneth Malone, W.E. Michael, and Charles Whitehill.

Special guests were student members of the area high school honor societies and the parents of Potomac State's honor students.

Astronaut Stafford, a native of Weatherford, Oklahoma, is a 1952 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and is currently assigned to the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston as the Deputy Director of Flight Crew Operations.

Chairman of arrangements was Prof. Kenneth F. Haines, assisted by Executive Dean Harold C. Doster, Academic Dean James T. Handlan, Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater, Prof. Paul F. Iverson, Prof. Leontine B. Nuzum, Miss Mary F. Shipper, Mrs. John Stanhagen, and Prof. Leonard G. Withers, as well as student members Susan Bishop and Dan Murphy.

Mrs. Robert T. Coffman, secretary of alumni affairs, was organist for the program and student body president Dan Murphy, son of Dr. and Mrs. Allen E. Murphy, gave the invocation.

Spring Once Again Busy Season Variety of Programs Scheduled

As always the months of March and April result in a busy time for Potomac State students and staff members. The year of 1972 will be no exception and the various cultural and entertainment committees have indicated that some mention of the events scheduled may create interest not only among the alumni but particularly by residents of the area which is served by the college.

"The Voices of Appalachia," the choir from Alice Lloyd College in Kentucky opened the series of programs with a concert on March 18 and was followed quickly by a concert by the Quinsegamond Choir of Massachusetts on March 26 and a program by Folk Singer Peter Ferrara on March 25.

On March 26-27 a delegation of faculty members will represent Potomac State at a seminar on drugs and drug abuse at Blackwater Falls State Park.

An annual benefit for the Developmental Center, Inc., will be sponsored by the PTFA in the college gymnasium on April 5. On April 6 and 7 there will be a tape recorder sound syne play and a Stage Band Concert in the Arts Center, with the program

1913 Grad Keeps It All In The Family As Others Wend Way to P.S.C.

A prominent and colorful Mineral County figure who has devoted many years of service to his community is a respected Potomac State alumnus and probably has done as much as anyone to bolster the ranks of the alumni and the loyal support of his children toward the college.

To borrow the title of the popular television show, Thomas R. Bosley, '15, has really kept it "All in the Family," although indications of his major contribution to his Alma Mater did not really come to light until his appearance at the recent homecoming luncheon and a subsequent letter from his son.

Mr. Bosley and his late wife were responsible for sending to the doors of Potomac State five sons and two daughters.

It all started prior to World War I, back in 1913, when Mr. Bosley attended the old Preparatory School. A daughter, Margaret, now Mrs. P.V. DeLeon, of Washington, D.C., completed one year in 1942 when Tom, Jr., came along. After three years out for World War II he returned to finish in 1947. He now lives in Pearlington, Miss.

Meanwhile, during the war years, Dave, (now Dr. David Bosley, of Grifton, N.C.) completed his work in 1946. Several years later John (now of Menlo Park, Calif.) came along and then twins Rupert and Jim finished in the early 60's. It was during the war years that a sister Caroline (now living in South America) took a course in sheet metal work in the college gym as her part for the war effort.

Following their endeavors at Potomac State, all five sons went on to receive degrees from major universities. Tom has his B.S. degree in chemistry from the University of Kentucky; Dave has his PH.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; John his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins; Jim his M.D. from West Virginia University, and Rupert his D.D.S. from WVU. Jim is presently working with Dr. Robert Bess in Piedmont and on the staff of Potomac Valley Hospital and Rupert is associated with Dr. William B. O'Connor, a dentist in Frostburg, Md.

The wife of Tom, Jr., the former Miss Jacqueline Grubbs, of Keyser, was graduated from the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in Cumberland but both of her parents as well as a brother, Jim, are also counted among the Potomac State alumni. Jim also married a Potomac State grad, the former Linda Metcalf '61.

Apparently, Tom Sr., knew a good thing when he saw it. Both Potomac State and the Alumni Association are glad he did!!!

DEATH CLAIMS

from high school and served as editor of the Pasquino, was a member of Sigma Phi Omega Honor Society, and the Players.

Later, at West Virginia University he earned an A.B. degree in English and Classics and won membership in Phi Beta Kappa. He received an M.A. degree from WVU in 1942 and pursued further graduate studies in English at the University of Minnesota and New York University.

His teaching career included assignments at WVU, the University of Minnesota, Kentucky Military Institute, Englewood (N.J.) School, West Virginia Wesleyan College, New York University, and Potomac State College.

He was active in campus drama for a number of years writing, producing, and starring in various productions and serving for a time as sponsor of the Players.

A former president of the Alumni Association (1943-44), his loyalty to the college and to its standards of excellence never faltered and at the time of his death was serving as president of the Potomac State College Alumni Foundation.

Survivors include a daughter,

Miss Margaret Anderson, a graduate student and teaching assistant in English at WVU; a brother and two sisters. His wife, the former Dr. Frances DeLancey, preceded him in death.

Funeral services were conducted on Dec. 7 in Keyser and burial followed at East Oak Grove in Morgantown.

Prof. Boone, 66, and a member of the faculty for 26 years, had been hospitalized briefly before Christmas but was able to return to his classes for the new semester. He died suddenly on Dec. 15 a few hours after being admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital.

A native of Franklin County, Va., he received an AB in chemistry with honors at Bridgewater College and an MA at Bucknell University. He also attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the University of Virginia.

His 44 years as an educator included being principal and teacher of science and later as an instructor and Dean of Boys at Daleville (Va.) Academy. He was named head of the science department in 1931 at Pennsylvania Avenue High School (later Fort Hill) in Cumberland, where he taught chemistry, physics, and general science for 15 years before being named full professor of chemistry in 1946 at Potomac State College.

Survivors include a daughter, the former Melva Susan Flora; a daughter, Joyce Ann Klein of Allentown, Pa.; two grandsons; a brother, and a sister.

Final rites were held from the Keyser Church of the Brethren on Jan. 19 and interment followed in Potomac Valley Memorial Park, Keyser.

Prof. Burke, who was 63, died on Jan. 17 in Potomac Valley Hospital following a long illness.

A native of Newburg, he received an A.B. degree in social studies from Fairmont State College in 1932 and was awarded a master's degree in political science from WVU in 1945. He had a 35-year career in education in the state of West Virginia. For 10 years (1932-40 and 1943-45) he taught social studies at Newburg High School and the same subjects from 1941-43 at Tunnelton High.

He joined the faculty of Potomac State in September 1945 and after nine years left the campus to become administrator of Potomac Valley Hospital in which capacity he served from 1954-57.

Rejoining the faculty at the college, he remained until his illness forced his retirement shortly after the fall session began. He was with the college for 23 years, teaching in the regular sessions and also during summer and evening programs.

Survivors include his wife, the former Mildred Lawrence; a brother and two sisters.

Mass of the Resurrection was sung for Prof. Burke on Jan. 20 at the Church of the Assumption in Keyser with burial following in St. Thomas Cemetery.

All three men were devoted to their profession and were a part of many organizations within their field of endeavor both on campus and throughout the community and state. They served as advisors to countless students who attended Potomac State and were sponsors of various college groups.
